

5

Methods, systems and computer program products are provided for authenticating a message from a client using a first authentication protocol and a resource manager using a second authentication protocol different from the first authentication protocol by generating a second message from the message from the client. The second message may include information from the client which has been authenticated using the first authentication protocol. The second message is authenticated using the second authentication protocol and the authenticated second message is provided to the resource manager.